New Year Inventory Shows Electrical, Mechanical

Accreditation Loss Urgent Problem

An inventory of Auburn at the beginning of this new year reveals the lack of accreditation in electrical and mechanical engineering as the most obvious and most disconcerting problem existent on the campus. In other areas there are encouraging signs: Enrollment is high; adoption of Amendment 5 has given impetus to careful plans for new progress on Ag and Vet Hills; and alumni interest in development of the institution seems to have reached a new peak.

Loss of accreditation in electrical and mechanical engineering constitutes an immediate and specific problem and spotlights an even broader crucial problem which has plagued Auburn considerably since the present steady rise in enrollment began in 1952. In recent years Auburn has not been able to attract, hire, and retain enough competent personnel to provide the most desirable instruction for her students.

Basically, lack of money is at the root of this unfortunate situation. An inadequate number of competent teachers inevitably affects the quality of instruction and just as inevitably leads to loss of recognition, or accreditation. As President Ralph B. Draughon has noted, "Other departments (other than mechanical and electrical engineering) are suffering from a loss of teaching strength; however, they are not discredited." This general shortage of teachers creates a long range problem to match the immediate problem of regaining accreditation in mechanical and electrical engineering.

Both problems can be solved only by an increase in financial support and a greater public awareness of the purposes of and needs for college education. For Auburn to solve these problems and reach Dr. Draughon's goal of Auburn's going first class in every department, full support of Auburn alumni, particularly those living in Alabama, is vital.

Alumni activity in support of Amendment 5 evidences what Auburn alumni can do when given a specific challenge. The Alumni Association is pledged now, as in the past, to keep the challenge of building a greater Auburn before the alumni and to suggest when there are specific ways that they may be of service.

Perhaps one of the most vital services that alumni can perform now is the dissemination of information about the plight of Auburn, and Alabama education in general. Further help can come from moves to inspire the public press to use more interpretive information about the State's educational institutions.

Evidence of the need for better communication with the public lies in the apparent fact that many of Auburn's friends were shockingly surprised at the news of loss of accreditation in mechanical and electrical engineering. Despite the inevitable shock, the loss could hardly come as a surprise to those in contact with developments at the institution in recent years. Auburn's critical shortage of teachers, classrooms and equipment has not been a secret. In fact, the administration has sought, almost desperately at times, means of impressing the seriousness of API shortages upon the Legislature and the public.

Somehow, somewhere the lines of communication have broken down. A brief review of information presented in the Alumnews—information gleaned from presentations by the administration and the Alumni Association to legislators, newsmen, and alumni—will indicate how complete the breakdown was.

In June, 1957, the Alumnews warned, in the largest front page headline feasible, that Auburn might lose accreditation without appropriations increase. The substance of the story under that head was drawn from a resolution to the governor and the Legislature by the Auburn Board of Trustees and from a statement addressed to the same by President Ralph B. Draughon and the presidents of other state colleges. The story summarized the Board of Trustees' plea that Auburn's full legislative request be granted, that Auburn faced possible loss of accreditation in some of her most important departments unless a substantial increase in appropriations was forthcoming.

In July, we noted the prospect for a slight increase in appropriations and pointed out that there was little room for rejoicing. In September, we reported the 11.6 percent increase actually given and called attention to the contrast between the $5,599,700 granted and the $7,143,000 requested earlier in the year by the Board of Trustees and the college administration. We also noted that the majority of the Legislature apparently had sought to alleviate the State's education crisis through HB 835, and that HB 835, which died as a result of a Senate filibuster, would have virtually fulfilled Auburn's request for funds.

During this period and even prior to it, the administration and the Alumni Association were not relying on formal statements and publicity alone. Both had representatives in Montgomery to talk to the legislature, and there was a series of meetings of alumni leaders.

From a study of 1955, the last previous legislative year, the same pattern

DEAN REDDING STANCILL SUGG

Dean Redding S. Sugg Dies On January 4

Dr. Redding Stancill Sugg, '14, dean of the API School of Veterinary Medicine, died in Auburn on January 4, 1958, following a stroke which occurred on Dec. 31.

Although Dr. Sugg had suffered from a circulatory ailment for several years, he had not curbed his normal activities in directing and developing the veterinary program at Auburn. He had recently taken a particularly active role in explaining the needs of the School of Veterinary Medicine and what the passage of Alabama Constitutional Amendment 5 would do to fill those needs. After adoption of the amendment by the voters of the State, he humorously stated that he was ready to take a shovel and start digging foundations while waiting for the drawn-out legal procedures of making a bond issue.

Dean Sugg was widely known throughout the South and the nation for his work in the field of animal husbandry and in development of regional education in veterinary science. He received the 12th International Veterinary Congress Prize in 1951. In the citation at the presentation of the prize, Dr. Sugg's persistent efforts and his leadership were credited for laying the groundwork for regional education which began with veterinary medicine, human medicine, and dentistry as the first beneficiaries.

Long Service to Auburn—

Dr. Redding Stancill Sugg was born in Old Sparta, N. C., on Oct. 19, 1893. He attended North Carolina State before transferring to Auburn in 1913. In 1914 he earned a B. S. and in 1915 a D. V. M. at API.

He returned to North Carolina to engage in the general practice of veterinary medicine. During World War I he served as an officer in the Veterinary Corps and was discharged with rank of captain in June, 1919.

Again he returned to Auburn where he soon became a professor of bacteriology and pathology. Then followed ten years as extension veterinarian and animal husbandman for the Alabama Agricultural Extension Service, from 1930 to 1940. In July, 1940, he became state veterinarian of Alabama and dean of the API School of Veterinary Medicine. During World War II, he served as chief of the veterinary branch at Camp Shelby, Miss. He retired in 1946 as a full colonel and returned to head the School of Veterinary Medicine at API.

Dr. Greene Heads Vet Interim Committee

President Ralph B. Draughon, API, has announced the appointment of Dr. James E. Greene, '33, to chairmanship of the Advisory Committee of the School of Veterinary Medicine.

Dr. Greene

Dr. Greene, head of Auburn's Veterinary Medical Clinics, will serve with the heads of the four other veterinary departments on the committee. The committee will serve in an advisory capacity and direct the activities of the School of Veterinary Medicine during the interim pending the selection and appointment of a dean to succeed the late Dean Redding S. Sugg who died Jan. 4.

Department heads serving on the committee with Dr. Greene are the following: Dr. W. S. Bailey, pathology; Dr. A. A. Leibold, bacteriology; Dr. T. C. Fitzgerald, anatomy and histology, and Dr. C. H. Clarke, physiology and pharmacology.

Advisory Committee Chairman James E. Greene began his collegiate studies at Emory University in 1928; in 1933 he completed the requirements for a Doctor of Veterinary Medicine degree at Auburn; he earned a Master of Science degree in veterinary medicine at API; in 1947 he did advanced study at the Mayo Foundation.

From 1933 through 1935 he engaged in private practice of veterinary medicine. He taught veterinary medicine from 1939-1942, when he entered the armed services during World War II. After his discharge in 1946 he returned to Auburn to teach veterinary medicine and to head the Large and Small Animal Clinics.

For Aid to Higher Education—

Brackeen Heads Alabama Council

L. O. Brackeen, '27, API director of publicity, has been elected chairman of the recently formed Alabama Council for Aid to Higher Education. The Council is a voluntary association of representatives of Alabama's public and private colleges and universities, formed for the purpose of interpreting to the public the role of advanced education in the life and economy of the State. Council membership is drawn chiefly from public information and alumni representatives of member institutions.

Formation of the council resulted from the recognition of the near crisis status of Alabama's colleges and universities and of the need for a more thorough public understanding of the problems of those institutions and of the importance of adequate and complete education to our youth.

The Council plans to use all available sources from civic clubs to television and the daily newspapers to acquaint Alabamians with the needs and services of their institutions of higher learning. Problems arising from continually rising enrollments are taking top priority as the Council's program officially opens this month.

Most colleges in the state already are at or near capacity, enrolling some 34,000 full-time students. Recent growth in enrollment reflects only the desire of more young people for college education. Today's college students, however, were born in the 1930's when births were at a low level. By 1965, only eight years away, colleges will be called on to teach 52,000 young people. They will be the youth born since World War II when the birth rate jumped to the record high level from which it has not receded.

DR. JAMES R. WOODALL, API English Department, is back on the air with his popular "Two R's" beamed directly toward the high school classrooms for the first time. His previous presentations of the fundamentals of English—word structure, sentences, and paragraph construction—brought surprising response from high school students and adults. The response has been particularly surprising when one considers the supposed unpopularity of the study of English. His program may be viewed on Channels 2, 7, and 10 at 9:30 on Wednesdays and Fridays, beginning Jan. 29.

From the Editor's Cubbyhole—

Do We Really Want Efficiency?

By Jerry Roden, Jr.

Periodically, as increasing enrollments require increasing financial support for schools, demands for greater efficiency in education are voiced by some members of the public and the "public" press. We find these demands troublesome for several reasons. First, they usually carry the implication that educators are in some way — exactly how is never explained—squandering the taxpayers' money. Next, they normally ignore the fact that since the turn of the century we have spent a decreasing proportion of total income for education while an increasing proportion of the population has sought more education. Furthermore, the demands seldom reveal what the speaker, or writer, really means by efficiency, although one receives the lingering impression that efficiency is used in the same sense that it applies to business and the assembly line; thus they invariably circumvent consideration of the crucial issues in education.

Perhaps Americans should decide—while we still have the unfettered right of public decision—whether we want business or assembly line type of efficiency in education. If we really want such efficiency, we must alter some fundamental concepts. Equal opportunity and free choice interfere with efficient operation. A completely efficient school system will quickly eliminate the slow starter and the individualist who insists upon taking any course of study other than that indicated by carefully planned, mechanically graded aptitude tests. The maladjusted, the underprivileged and the handicapped must fall by the wayside. Individual attention, student-teacher relationships, and student participation in class discussions have no place in the system.

A close look at today's schools may even raise the question of whether forced efficiency is not the chief problem facing education. Stringent budgets have forced administrators to focus on the mass rather than the individual. Low salaries have discouraged competent people from entering the teaching field, and have induced the hiring of substandard teachers, in some cases when qualified teachers were available. As a result general courses have been substituted for basic courses in high school curricula—general math for algebra and geometry; general science for physics and chemistry; driver training, commercial subjects, and public speaking for foreign languages, history, and literature. Apparently necessary economies have resulted in depleted libraries and outdated, mutilated laboratory equipment.

The end product of this system testifies to an efficiency of a sort in modern education: more credits, diplomas, and degrees per unit of expenditure are produced. Through the use of television, tape recorders, etc., the process can become more and more streamlined; admittedly education can become much more efficient—but not without a sacrifice in quality. Nothing can replace the inspiration and guidance which a student receives from close relationship with a dedicated teacher. Machine made artifacts may simulate those that are hand carved, may even serve as well or better for some purposes, but they always lack the individuality and often lack the ruggedness and character found in the hand-made product. Democracy may thrive on assembly-line produced vehicles, appliances, and furniture, but can it survive with mass educated stereotypes for citizens?

Accreditation Is Key Problem

emerges. In April of that year the Alumnews summarized Auburn's needs as they were being explained to alumni groups in District meetings across the State. A salient point of this story was that Auburn with an enrollment that had passed 7,000 the previous fall was still operating on the same budget that it received for 5,385 students four years before. In May the Alumnews front page was devoted to the four-year, 76 per cent enrollment increase in the School of Engineering. A graphic illustration showed that from 1951 to 1954 the student load per teacher in engineering increased from 22.4 to 39.3. During this period many alumni were busy telling Auburn's needs to the legislature and the public and the Alumni Association issued 22,000 copies of The Dollar with the Big Dividend, a booklet with graphic illustrations of Auburn's needs. By September the Alumnews could tell that the legislature had voted a substantial increase for instruction, research, and extension at API, but much of that increase was dependent on adoption of the ill-fated Goodwyn Bill and its accompanying measure—Constitutional Amendments 1 and 2. The amendments failed and much of the "paper" increase in appropriations vanished so that with steadily increasing enrollment Auburn struggled through the next two years on a near crisis basis.

A flash on back to the legislative year 1953 doesn't go back to the beginning of this story being told in chronological reverse, but it completes a good sample of the recurring pattern. In the March issue, the Alumnews reported the results of a meeting in Auburn of many alumni and the representatives of six legislative committees. The purpose of that one day of conferences and tours of the campus was to show what Auburn was doing and what she needed to do a better job. One of the keynotes of this meeting was that one of Auburn's most acute problems was raids on its teaching staff by other colleges and industry, both of which were able to pay higher salaries.

In July, the Alumnews drew upon materials prepared for legislative and public consumption to portray graphically the rapid increase in enrollment, the differential between teaching salaries at Auburn and those at other land-grant colleges, and to illustrate how much better all other workers were faring in wage increases than were teachers.

By August, we could report that the House Ways and Means Committee had voted no increase for the instruction division. The story ran under a bold face banner, "API Student Body Draws Penalty." The "crime" was unprecedented growth. The penalty two more years without any expansion in course variety and two more years of operation (with an estimated 6,800 enrollment coming up) on an operational budget based on 5,385 students. The legislature was still in session so there was a last court of appeal. The appeal didn't work; in September a legislative snub of the "instruction" request was reported. However, the enrollment went on up to 6,747 that fall.

Coming back to the present (1958), we find Auburn, after two years of successive fall enrollments in excess of 8,000 students, still facing the acute problem of maintaining an adequate faculty for instruction. Some increases in appropriations have come—but always behind the demand.

The story of Auburn's need has been told and many alumni, a number of legislators, and the administration have worked hard. But as we noted before, somewhere the line of communication has broken down. Those of us here at the Alumni Association did not have to wait for the new year to make a resolution to fight to prevent such a breakdown from becoming chronic. We took our cue from the administration and joined the thousands of individual alumni who apparently made their resolutions well ahead of January 1.

The excellent cooperation of Auburn alumni and friends from all walks of life in the campaign for the adoption of Amendment 5 shows that a well developed line of communication from Auburn to the people she serves can be maintained. In that campaign farmers, bankers, merchants, salesmen, members of organized labor, and professional men met together for briefing and planning and then went out and did a job that merits our deepest appreciation. That same pattern of meetings will be used to help solve the immediate problem of the electrical and mechanical engineering departments—and to attack the long range problems of the whole institution.

It is going to take work, thought, and persistence, but Auburn will go first class in all departments.

Intermingled in his varied career was participation in the activities of several professional organizations. He had been president of the Alabama and Southern veterinary medical associations, a member of the Executive Board of the American Veterinary Medical Association, and president of the animal disease research workers in Southern States.

He was a member of the American Veterinary Medical Association, the U. S. Livestock Association, the Association of Military Surgeons, the Alabama Veterinary Medical Association, Alpha Psi, Epsilon Sigma Phi, Phi Kappa Phi, the Masons, and Kiwanis Club.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Katherine Maud Miller Sugg, Auburn, and his son, Dr. Redding S. Sugg, Jr., '43, Atlanta, Ga.

Alumni Partnership—

Dryden

Collins

A partnership to be known as G. Malory Collins, Horace E. Dryden and Associates, Architects, has been formed in Dallas, Texas by two Auburn graduates. Collins, a Lambda Chi Alpha, is a member of the Class of 1932 and Dryden was in the Class of 1950.

Both men are members of the American Institute of Architects and of the Texas Society of Architects. While at Auburn, Dryden was given the AIA School Award in architect.

Among recent projects of the firm is the new Ruth Collins Dormitory which will house 600 women, at Baylor University in Waco.

THE AUBURN ALUMNEWS is published by Auburn Alumni Association, Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, Ala. Jerry Roden, Jr., '46, is editor. The staff includes Bill Beckwith, '51, sports editor; Lester King, '51, API photographer. The Auburn Alumnews was entered as second class matter February 4, 1946, at the Post Office, Auburn, Alabama, under the Act of August 24, 1912.

Earl Tucker Is 'Best Vote Getter'

Earl Lee Tucker, '26—Thomasville publisher, legislator, speaker, and humorist—won the Alumnews "Get Out the Vote" contest with ease by personally escorting 47 people to the polls on Dec. 17. No other reporting alumnus broke the 20 mark.

EARL LEE TUCKER

When informed of his lead, Mr. Tucker expressed amazement and said, "Maybe the other fellows were just too tired from working for the amendment (Amendment 5) to feel like sending in their reports." The Alumnews can see how that the other Auburn alumni could be rather weary, for a lot of hard work went into the passage of Amendment 5.

The final state vote of 116,939 for the amendment to only 27,992 opposed stands as a tribute to the work of Auburn alumni and friends. How much the work done by the volunteer State Committee for the Adoption of Amendment 5 did to change the complexion of an off-year amendment election cannot be measured. Certainly, the favorable vote for a number of important amendments is unprecedented in recent Alabama history.

Recognition of the fine work done by alumni over the State adds to rather than detracts from the honor due to our winning "vote-getter." If each alumnus had equalled Mr. Tucker, the total vote cast in the State would have exceeded 750,000, instead of the approximately 150,000 cast. In addition to carrying people to the polls, he was Clarke County chairman of the Committee for the Adoption of Amendment 5.

Earl Tucker is a humorist in the fine old local newspaper tradition that goes back to the early days of our country. His column "Rambling Roses and Flying Bricks" is a feature eagerly awaited not only by his regular subscribers but also by many editors around the State and country. As time has passed his fame has gradually spread so that approximately 35 newspapers, weekly and daily, now carry his humorous column.

He is a much sought after-dinner speaker, who may speak on any subject from the "Tucker one-day work week" to the fruitlessness of worrying—"Ninety-nine per cent of the things which we worry about never happen."

His trenchant sense of humor cannot be described—it must be enjoyed. A brief sample of recent vintage (wish we had room for it all) is appropriate here; the following is the conclusion to a column on a new theory of evolution a theory which assumes that man evolved from a brown seaweed of a billion or so years ago:

Wrong Trail

"Sometimes I think we are more concerned about where we came from than we are about where we're headed. We spend more time trying to locate a genius in our family tree than we do in trying to rear one in our homes.

"But, here at the start of a new year, it seems mighty foolish for me to be spending my time on theories of evolution. We know we are here, on this Good Earth, and that should be enough to satisfy us. If Dr. Dillon wants to be kin to a seaweed (brown) that's his business. If you want to have a monkey for an uncle, that's o.k. by me. Personally, I'll take old Grandpappy Adam, although he certainly did mess up things in the Garden."

Earl Lee Tucker was born onto this Good Earth on July 25, 1904, to Austico Busbee and Lula Hall Tucker in Thomasville, Clarke County, Alabama. He entered Auburn in the fall of 1922 and graduated in 1926. In 1927 he became editor and publisher of The Thomasville Times, positions which he still holds.

He has served four terms in the Alabama Legislature as representative from Clarke County. His service was during the Miller, Dixon, Sparks, and first Folsom administrations.

He is recognized throughout Alabama as an authority on fishing and hunting. He is the winner of the Alabama Press Association's "Most Original Column" award for 1957.

Mr. Tucker was rather modest—in fact somewhat stingy—in furnishing material for this feature. He submitted a few facts which he said were on "the good side." Fortunately, we knew or were able to learn a good bit more. None that we found were on the bad side (Although, knowing of his descent from "Grandpappy Adam," we suspect that he must have made a mistake or so somewhere along the line). However, the plus side overshadows those undiscovered errors, whatever they are.

Prospects of ever increasing enrollments plus the critical shortage of competent faculty and adequate classrooms, laboratories, and equipment highlight the necessity for increased—and carefully planned—long-range support of higher education in Alabama. However, the Council does not plan to call attention to these problems alone.

In the process of organization, Council members noted the necessity of calling attention to the importance of the quality of college education as well as the quantity of graduates produced. The fact that more and more young people from families with little or no previous opportunity or experience in college education are enrolling in colleges emphasizes the need for explaining to the public what a college education may mean in terms of human as well as economic value to the individual.

The Alabama Council will work cooperatively with the American Council for Financial Aid to Higher Education. Committee chairmen serving with Brackeen are Ed Brown, University of Alabama News Bureau director, John A. Fincher, assistant to the president at Howard College, and Dr. C. B. Smith, president of Troy State College.

Those attending the organizational meetings here included: C. C. Turner, Jr., Huntingdon College, Montgomery; Miss Mary McMillian, Judson College, Marion; Leo C. Muller, Spring Hill College, Mobile; Otis L. Peacock, Florence Douglas Wasson, Southern Union College, Wadley; Ralph Sears, Alabama College, Montevallo; R. C. Kennedy, Troy State College, Troy; Mrs. Virginia Hamilton, Birmingham Southern, Birmingham; Miss Eugenia Griffin, Judson College, Marion; C. B. Smith, Troy State College, Troy; Aloysius Plaisance, St. Bernard College, St. Bernard; Theon B. Montgomery, Jacksonville State College, Jacksonville; Leon Gillespie, Southeastern Bible College, Birmingham; John A. Fincher, Howard College, Birmingham; Frank Forwood, Judson College, Marion; Paul Irvine, Fowles Dugger, Jr., Jerry Roden, Jr., Joe Sarver, L. O. Brackeen, Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn; Jeff Coleman, and Ed Brown, University of Alabama, University.

DR. ROBERT R. REA, API History Department, is the host on Auburn Television's "World History Since World War I." The program is an enrichment feature of Auburn's programs beamed to the high schools of the state, but Dr. Rea's penetrating presentations may be of benefit to anyone who has a few minutes viewing time at 9:30 on Monday mornings, beginning Jan. 27.

JEFFERSON COUNTY CLUB

Harry Burns presented watches to 24 Auburn gridders on Dec. 4 at the Jefferson County Auburn Club's annual meeting honoring senior Tigers. Jimmy (Big Red) Phillips received the All-America Award of NBC's program Today from Charles Grisham of WAPI, WAFM, and WABT. Tackle Dan Presley was presented the C. W. (Bill) Streit Trophy as the top Tiger scholar.

Coach Ralph Jordan was there to say that Auburn will have another fine team next year; Jeff Beard and Joe Sarver were on hand too for the festivities.

Outgoing Jefferson County President Wayne Nelson presented the Club's new officers for 1958. They are: Porter Roberts, president; Jim McGowan, vice-president; John Lanier, secretary; and Frank Davies, treasurer.

WASHINGTON (D.C.) CLUB

Washington, D. C., alumni celebrated Auburn Night Dec. 2, with President Ralph B. Draughon, '22, as honor guest.

The dinner meeting at the Mayfair Restaurant was sponsored jointly by the Auburn Alumni Club of Washington and the Alabama Supper Club. Dr. E. T. York, Jr., '42, president of the Supper Club, was toastmaster. Samuel B. Hand, '31, introduced each of the more than 200 people attending.

James M. Earnest, '27, president of the Auburn Alumni Club of Washington, introduced President Draughon and Alumni Secretary Joseph B. Sarver, Jr., '37.

During the evening, alumni were informed that Auburn was ranked No. 1 football team in the nation by the Associated Press. President Draughon, in his talk, praised the 1957 Tigers for their "will to win." He cited Coach Ralph (Shug) Jordan, '32, and his young coaching staff for "courage, character, and devotion to the boys."

In discussing the critical needs of higher education in Alabama, President

Draughon explained what the ratification of Amendment 5 in the Dec. 17 election would mean to Auburn and all Alabama.

He described as the primary work of Auburn "the training young men and women in the application of sciences to meet human needs. We are doing a good job, but our faculty is overloaded." The need for scientists is particularly acute in the Deep South, where rapid economic change requires educated men and women for the future, he added.

Alumni Secretary Sarver discussed the work of the Auburn Alumni Association briefly before narrating the film of the Auburn-Houston football game.

Dr. Greene Heads Vet

Dr. Greene's professional memberships include Educational Committee of the American Animal Hospital Association (1948-1951), Committee on Diseases of Small Animals of the American Veterinary Medical Association (1948-1955), A.V.M.A. Research Council (1951-1955), and the Executive Committee of the A.V.M.A. Council on Education.

He is now chairman of the A.V.M.A. Council on Education which is responsible for establishing and applying criteria for the accreditation of schools and colleges which offer courses leading to a degree in veterinary medicine.

He is a member of Lambda Chi Alpha, Alpha Psi, ODK, Phi Zeta, Sigma Xi and Phi Eta Sigma. He has been chairman of the faculty committee on scholarships since 1949. Dr. Greene is a former member of the Auburn City Council and is active in civic affairs. He is a lieutenant colonel in the U.S. Air Force Reserve. He was named faculty vice president of the alumni association in 1954.

Auburn Basketball In Review

Starting the current basketball season without the services of 1957 sophomore ace Henry Hart has been the big block for Auburn's cagers this season.

Injured during pre-season workouts, Hart, counted on as one of the top players in the SEC, had to undergo a knee operation in early November and will not participate this season. He will return in the 1958-59 season however, retaining his junior status.

With Hart out of the lineup and Sophomore Shot Johnston injured in the fifth game of the season, Coach Joel Eaves' Tigers were fortunate to end the month of December with four wins and three losses.

The four victories were over Jacksonville State, 89-50; Wake Forest, 78-66; T.C.U., 75-63; and Howard, 106-47. The three losses were to Mississippi State, 52-37; S.M.U., 75-65, and Baylor, 62-53.

Eaves opened the season with Junior Rex Frederick of Corner, and Soph Johnston of Ashford at the forwards; Junior Bill Gregory of Auburn at center, and Junior Jimmy Lee of Columbus, Ga., and Senior Bobby Tucker of

New Market at the guards. When Johnston was felled with his arch injury, Senior J. B. Bearden of Cartersville, Ga. was promoted to the starting forward job.

Through December, Captain Frederick was leading the scorers with 110 points and a 15.7 average. Close behind were Lee (12.0), Johnston (10.8), Gregory (9.0), Tucker (8.3), Terry Chandler (4.7), Bearden (4.3), Bill McGriff (3.9), Bayward McManus (3.7), now out with a broken collar bone, and Ty Samples (3.1).

The Tigers will not play another game in Auburn until February 1 when they open a four-game stand against Vanderbilt, Georgia Tech, Georgia and Florida.

After playing Mississippi State, Mississippi, and Florida on the road, Auburn returns to the State on January 18 to play the University of Alabama in Montgomery. On Jan. 22, they journey to Atlanta to meet Georgia Tech, then return to nearby Columbus, Ga., on Jan. 25 for a date with Georgia.

JANUARY CATCH-ALL—Alex City did itself proud on the 15th with "Jimmy Phillips Appreciation Day." The City dispensed with the usual formality of auto-giving and tripled the output with a deposit in a bank in their town . . . Decatur was the first to honor their No. 1 citizen of 1957 with "Tim Baker Day" on December 30. The fine folks of that Northwest Alabama town held a fabulous banquet for Tim and presented him a new automobile.

On the subject of finances, Dave Middleton of the Detroit Lions made more money during the past season than any former Auburn athlete has ever collected in professional football. Besides his regular season's salary, amount unknown, Dr. Middleton picked up an additional $5200.00 in two post-season games, the East-West playoff and the championship game against Cleveland.

Former Auburn gridders in Pro football during 1957 were Middleton of the Lions, injured early but finishing as first string righthalf as flanker; Ernest Danjean of Green Bay Packers, first string defensive middle linebacker; Bobby Freeman, top reserve defensive back of the Browns, and M. L. Brackett of the Chicago Bears, regular corner linebacker on defense.

Most sought-after prepper signed by Auburn during the past harvest was 190-pound halfback Talmadge Lee of Jacksonville, Fla. Lee averaged 14 yards a run and was approached by 28 different colleges with scholarships . . . 1957 was also the year of "Davids" for the football talent-seekers here. All in all, there were six boys with the first name of David signed—Spain, Edwards, McKool, Woodward, Exline, and Luttrell.

Coach Joel Eaves also got in the signing act after the Dec. 7 deadline. The basketball freshmen of 1958 will have three tall ones in Leon Posey, 6-7 center of Moulton; Billy Littrell, 6-4 forward of Moulton, and John Helmlinger, 6-6 center-forward of Bradenton, Fla.

SPRING PRACTICE AROUND THE CORNER

Spring football practice is just around the corner and the A-Day game has been set tentatively for March 8. Among the top upcoming sophomores will be Fullback Roy Brazil, red-shirt fullback from New Orleans; Tackle Ken Rice of Bainbridge, Ga.; Tackle Billy Wilson of Birmingham; Quarterback Don Fuell of Guntersville; Lefthalf Jimmy Pettus of Oxford; Righthalf Wayne Proffitt of Gadsden, and Fullbacks Ed Dyas of Mobile and Charlie Benefield of Rossville, Ga.

Jordan

Ralph Jordan received the highest award a coach can receive on January 11 when he was honored by the Washington, D. C., Quarterback Club as "Coach of the Year" for the nation . . . Defensive Coach Hal Herring received another high honor by being asked to lecture on defense at the annual NCAA meeting of the American Football Coaches Association in Philadelphia on Jan. 7.

The Athletic Department has made a 45-minute sound-on-film highlight of the 1957 football season and it will be available for alumni and civic groups, but reservations will have to be made in advance through the alumni office, or Alumni Secretary Joe Sarver by letter.

Also, pictures of the 1957 National Football Championship team will be sold through my office with the proper lettering and identification to go with this souvenir. Due to terrific demands, these pictures will have to be purchased. For information write to me, Box 1071, Auburn, Ala. Exact cost is not known at this time but the size of the photo will have to be designated by purchaser.

Auburn placed three players on the Atlanta Journal's "Players All-SEC" first team and three on the second unit. First choices were Jimmy Phillips, Ben Preston and Jackie Burkett. Selected on the second unit were Jerry Wilson, Tim Baker and Tommy Lorino. Voting for this team was by the players, this giving one of the more authentic mythical squads. Top vote getters were Phillips, Preston, and Lou Michaels of Kentucky.

Regulars on the 1958 freshman basketball team are Forwards David Vaughn (Chattanooga, Tenn.) and Tommy Henderson (Birmingham); Center Walter Jackson (Tenaflly, N. J.); Guards Porter Gilbert (Geraldine) and Lloyd Bankson (Cape Elizabeth, Me.) . . . One football player, Don Fuell, is also on the frosh cage team as a second string forward.

Jimmy F. Hitchcock was nominated for the 1957 Sports Illustrated Silver Anniversary All-America. The unique All-America roster honors the 25 senior collegiate football lettermen of 25 years ago who have accomplished the most in the intervening time. Hitchcock is a member of the Alabama Public Service Commission, an active worker of the API board of trustees. He was captain of Auburn's 1932 football team and was elected to the National Football Hall of Fame in 1954.

War Eagles Ring At Trophy Presentation

"Never in my sportswriting days have I seen anything like the celebration here at Auburn," said Associated Press Sports Editor Ted Smits after presenting the AP trophy to the No. 1 football team in the nation before 12,000 Tiger rooters in Cliff Hare Stadium on Dec. 10.

Considering everything, Smits agreed that the Auburn people are the most enthusiastic folks he has even been around.

"Something else," Smits volunteered, "the entire presentation planned by Dr. Ralph B. Draughon, Athletic Director Jeff Beard, and Coach Ralph Jordan was the finest and best ever organized."

The trophy presented by Mr. Smits for the Associated Press will remain in Auburn for one full year, and it has to be returned before the final vote counting of 1958. The only way that the Tigers can retain permanent possession is to win the national championship two more years, not necessarily consecutively.

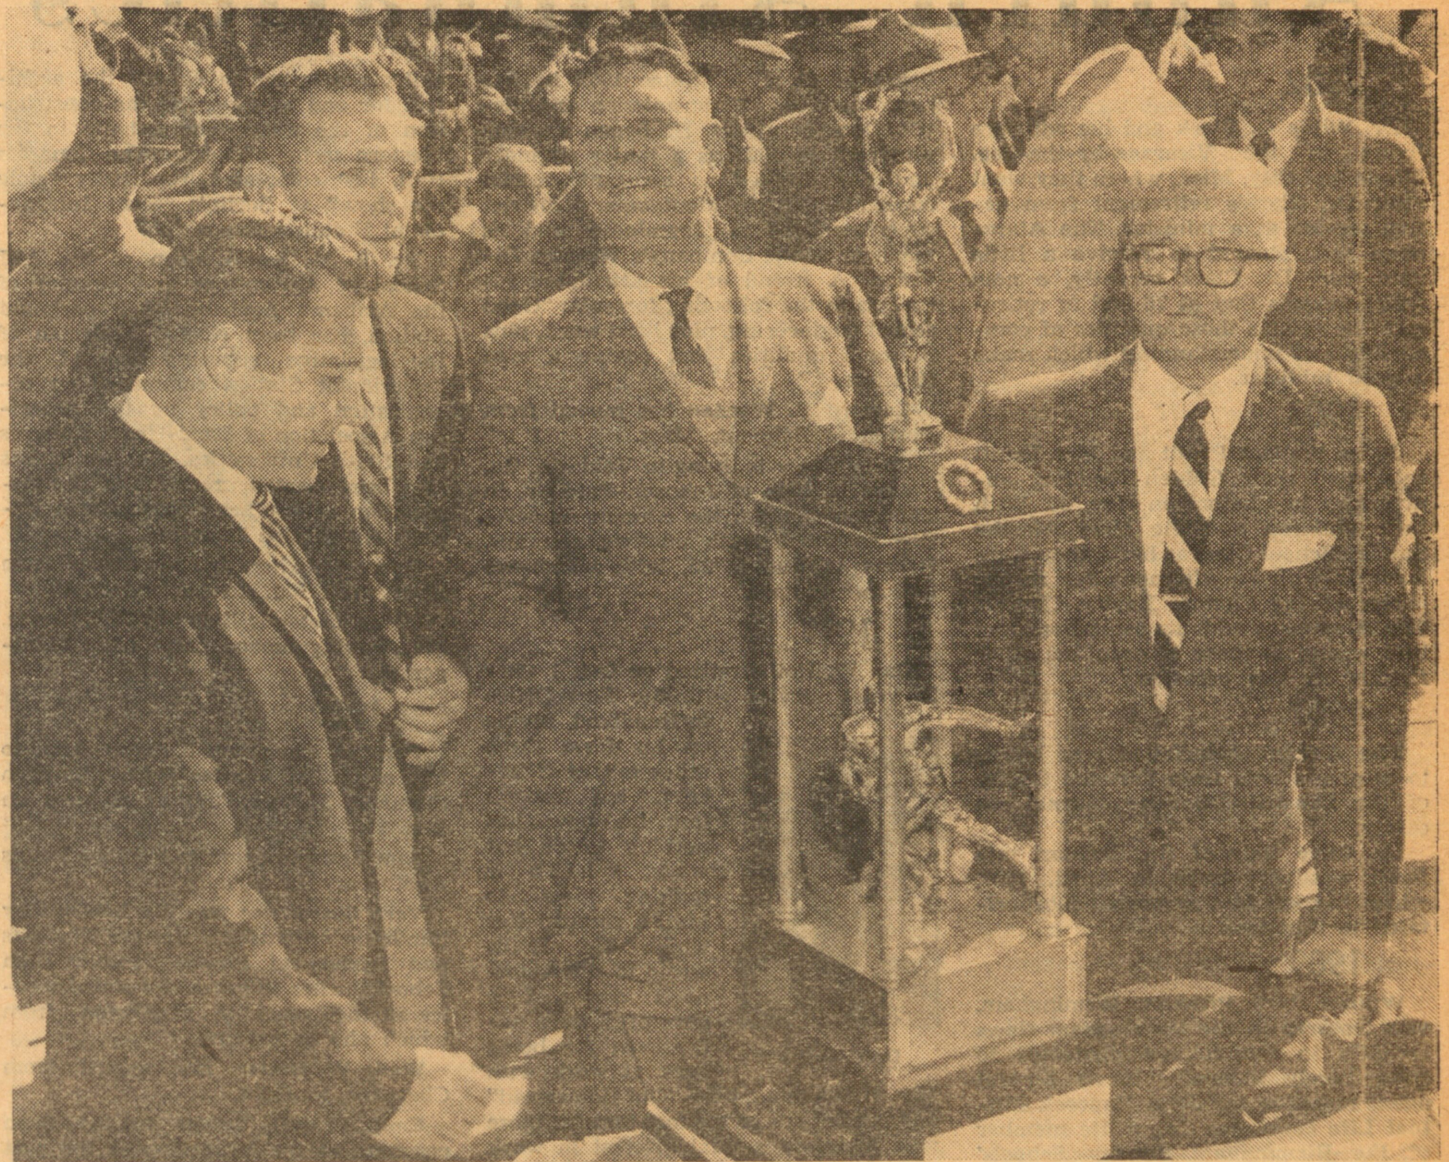

Mr. Smits did present a plaque which will remain in the Field House permanently.

Over fifty members of the press, radio, and TV attended the ceremony—which Mr. Smits also agreed was the largest turnout he had ever witnessed.

Jokingly, Mr. Smits told the 12,000 enthusiastic Auburn people that he had been hearing this cry "War Eagle" for many years, including at the World Series in Milwaukee this past summer but he wasn't sure what it meant.

"I still don't know what War Eagle means—but I don't really care. To me, it means Auburn and what these people stand for—enthusiastic sportsmanship."

TEN LONG SATURDAY AFTERNOONS—AND THEN CAME THE AWARD—

TWELVE THOUSAND LOYAL FANS crowded the West Stands of Cliff Hare Stadium on Dec. 10 to see Ted Smits (right above) present the Associated Press Trophy for the Number One Team in the Nation to Auburn. It was a joyous occasion for the entire twelve thousand, but the other happy

In Memoriam—'Ninety-Six Through 'Fifty-Three

Hubert J. Magruder, '96, died at his home in New Smyrna Beach, Fla., on Dec. 6 after a very short illness. He was a citrus grower and had lived in New Smyrna Beach since 1925, moving there from Oak Hill, Fla. He was born on Jan. 2, 1875 in Rockledge, Fla. He is survived by one daughter, Miss Elizabeth Magruder of New Smyrna Beach. She reports that, "He watched with pride the Auburn football team this past season, and enjoyed teasing with his best friend—a Georgia Tech graduate."

Douglas Taylor, '96, of Rt. 4, Huntsville, is now deceased. While at Auburn, he studied civil engineering.

A. G. Walker, '07, died at Conecuh County Hospital in Evergreen on Nov. 28, 1957. Mr. Walker also took a post-graduate course in civil engineering in 1908. He worked for the Highway Department most of the time after graduation, retiring from his post with the Department in 1953. He attended the Class of 1907 Fiftieth Anniversary Reunion in Auburn on Oct. 12, 1957, but suffered a heart attack at that time which confined him to his hotel room and from which he never completely recovered. He was 74 at the time of his death. Survivors include his widow, Mrs. A. G. Walker of Evergreen, and a brother, G. C. Walker, '08, Clanton.

Samuel Wilbert Archibald, '07, died in Aliceville Hospital on Nov. 15, 1957. Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Emma G. Archibald, Aliceville; two sons, Wilbert Hall Archibald, Aliceville, and Charles M. Archibald, Union Springs; three daughters, Mrs. Winton M. Blount, Montgomery, and Mrs. Cliff Horton and Mrs. Earnest Colvin, both of Aliceville.

Dr. Elam Tandy Hallman, '10, former API instructor, died in East Lansing, Mich., on Nov. 17, 1957, from a heart attack. After his graduation from API, he did post-graduate work in human pathology at Johns Hopkins University before becoming an instructor in bacteriology and pathology at Auburn. He joined the staff of Michigan Agricultural College in 1912 and three years later became head of the department of animal pathology, a position which he held until his retirement in 1949. He was the author of a number of articles and publications and a member of many professional organizations. He was a member of the East Lansing City Council for 10 years, for many years on the board of trustees of People's Church, and a director of East Lansing State Bank for 23 years. Survivors include his wife, Alma Cook Hallman; two daughters, Mrs. Donald B. Sweeney, Birmingham, and Mrs. Edward Ellsworth, East Lansing; and seven grandchildren.

Claude Wright Watson, '13, retired Texas Company chemist, died at his home in Port Arthur, Texas, on Nov. 21, 1957, as the result of a heart attack. He had been a resident of Port Arthur since 1919. He was active in that city's civic and community life, having served as president of the Knife and Fork Club and Rotary Club and as chairman of the Port Arthur district of Boy Scouts. He was a member of the Men's Garden Club, the Methodist Temple, and Alpha Tau Omega social fraternity. While at Auburn, he was president of the Class of 1910. Prior to going with the Texas Company he worked with DuPont in Hopewell, Va. From 1934 to 1947, he was transferred to the New York office of the Texas Co. as assistant to the director of research. He returned to Port Arthur as a research chemist, which position he held until retirement in May 1957. Survivors include his wife, Myrtle Higginbotham Watson, Port Arthur; a daughter, Mrs. R. C. Anderson, Cranford, N. J.; a son, George Wright Watson, Houston; and two sisters, Mrs. Juliet Jones, Camden, and Mrs. A. R. Taylor, Ralph.

John Rush Lester, '14, died in Birmingham on Oct. 8, 1957. He was associated with the Alabama Power Co.

James E. Bazemore, '14, of Orlando, Fla., is now deceased.

Hugh W. Caffey, '17, died at his home in Augusta, Ga., on Oct. 3, 1957. He was a retired member of the staff of the Alabama Department of Conservation, Division of Forestry. Before his retirement he was located in Union Springs.

Col. Jesse Samuel Burbage, '18, died on Dec. 5 at a hospital in Huntsville. Following his retirement from the service, Col. Burbage had spent the past six years as administrator of the City-County Hospital in Tuskegee. He was a member of the Rotary Club and the First Methodist Church in Tuskegee.

He had recently presented a military flag to API. The flag is in the possession of the Athletic Department, which uses it for official occasions. Col. Burbage's survivors include a son, Dr. Jesse S. Burbage, Jr., Huntsville; two daughters, Mrs. James S. West, Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Douglas Sanford, New York City; one brother, Philip Burbage, Birmingham; and two sisters, Mrs. Harry Evans, Birmingham, and Mrs. Theodore Winston, Tusculumbia.

Albert Sidney Scott, '19, Montgomery resident, died on Dec. 7 at a Birmingham hospital. He was 76 at the time of his death. Prior to receiving a degree in agriculture at Auburn in 1919, he received a degree from Peabody College in 1907. He studied for a master's at Cornell University. He was principal and teacher of the vocational agriculture at Five Points, the first consolidated school in Alabama, and was principal in schools in Wedowee, Reform, Fayette, and Walker counties, where he also served as superintendent of education. He retired from teaching in 1944 to become a probation officer with the Alabama Board of Pardons and Paroles. Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Alton B. Parker, Birmingham; and two brothers, Thomas J. Scott, Carbon Hill, and Grover C. Scott, Jasper.

Andrew Alonzo Burke, '19, was buried Dec. 30, 1957, in Memory Hill Cemetery at Albertville. He had served as the head of the Chemistry Dept. at Snead College in Boaz, where he was a professor for more than 50 years. In addition to a B.S. in agriculture from API, he earned an M.S. in chemistry in 1927. He was 74 at the time of his death. Survivors include the widow, Mrs. Lula Burke; a son, John A. Rains, Albertville; four brothers, G. G. and Calvin Burke, Geraldine, A. V. Burke, Gadsden, and Sanford Burke, Attalla; three sisters, Mrs. Mamie Gibbs, Chattanooga, and Mrs. Viola Hubbs, Chat-tanooga, and Miss Ida Burke, Groves Oak.

Winston C. White, '19, died in the Geneva County Hospital, Geneva, on August 26, 1957, from injuries received four days earlier in Northwest Florida. A native of Livingston, he had lived in Lumpkin, Ga., for the past several years. He received his education at Livingston schools, Rose Hill Academy of Versailles, Ky., and API. He was a veteran of Wars I and II. For more than twenty years he had been Soil Conservationist with the USDA. He is survived by his wife, Marie Williams White; three sisters, Mrs. Robert H. Barnes, Montevallo; Mrs. L. A. Baarcke, Clearwater, Fla.; and Miss Addie White, Livingston; two brothers, Cameron W. White, '25, St. Petersburg, Fla.; and Hubbard W. White, Livingston.

Harry J. Crawford, '20, of Savannah Beach, Ga., died on Nov. 12, 1957. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Willie B. Crawford.

Casey Dalton, '25, of Georgiana is now deceased.

Amos Campbell, '26, of Albertville, died on Oct. 4, 1957. Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Amos Campbell, Albertville.

Sidney T. Yancey, '27, of Atlanta, Ga., died in late November, 1957. He was a member of the Yancey Brothers Co., Georgia dealers for Caterpillar.

Joe K. Fuller, '34, of Clearwater, Fla., died on Nov. 27, 1957. He was born in Marion Junction on Feb. 25, 1913 and attended Selma High School before coming to Auburn. At Auburn he was a member of Pi Kappa Phi, Tau Beta Pi, Eta Kappa Nu, and Scabbard and Blade. He served as an officer in the Army of the United States during World War II. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Joe K. Fuller, Clearwater, Fla.

Miss Nellie D. Oliver, '52, of Birmingham is now deceased. Survivors include a brother, Roland G. Oliver, Birmingham.

Lt. (jg) Eugene H. Parker, '53, was killed in an airplane crash at sea on Dec. 6, 1957. He was flying a Navy AD-6 off the carrier Essex in the Atlantic at the time of the accident. He was stationed at the Naval Air Station in Jacksonville, Fla. Survivors include a brother, Robert L. Parker, '54.

Dr. Paul Ingold Murrill, who was a professor in chemistry at API at the turn of the century, died at his home in Norwalk, Conn., on Dec. 11, 1957. He was 83 at the time of his death. After leaving Auburn, he was an industrial chemist with several large companies and the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Auburn Alumnalities

Dr. Willis G. Clark and his wife are living in the Vicarage-by-the-Sea, Mississippi City, Miss., where they went after Dr. Clark's retirement from active service as a minister. The Alumnews was pleased to receive a little note from Dr. Clark recently, a note which reveals that at 76 and in retirement he retains those qualities of compassion and understanding which make a good minister.

1903

Judge Wallace Pruitt and Mrs. Pruitt celebrated their Golden Wedding anniversary in Chatom on Nov. 27. With their children and the Mary Martha Sunday School Class as hosts, they were honored with an afternoon tea in the parlor of the Chatom Baptist Church. The Alumnews adds its salutations and best wishes to those of countless other friends on this occasion.

The Alumni Association was happy to receive a note from Tarleton Collier of the Louisville Courier Journal recently.

Dr. Olive Daly of Birmingham suffered a slight stroke in April, 1957, which has left him somewhat incapacitated to this date.

William Ivey Pittman, Birmingham, was featured in the Birmingham News recently in the column dedicated to "Our Lively Elders." He is general agent emeritus for John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co., a life member of the Birmingham Sunday Schools' board, charter member, past president, and past district governor of Lions International, the president of the Homewood Public Library Board, an executive committee member of the Southern Baptist Hospitals' board of trustees, and chairman of the Jefferson County advisory committee for public schools.

Roger B. McWhorter, chief engineer for the Federal Power Commission in Washington, D. C., visited old friends in Birmingham and watched the Auburn Tigers complete their undefeated season during Thanksgiving weekend. Col. Millard A. Wescott is living on Lake Jordan, RFD 3, Wetumpka.

Dr. A. B. Moore, dean of the University of Alabama Graduate School, received a citation from fellow members of the Conference of Deans of Southern Graduate Schools at their meeting in Norman, Okla., early in December. Dean Moore is the only living founder of the 30-year-old conference.

1913

Willis P. Woodruff, Birmingham, has retired from his position with the Wofford Oil Co.

Frank E. Boyd, Montgomery, was unanimously re-elected president of the Alabama Soil Fertility Society, Inc., at the concluding session of the Society's annual meeting in Montgomery on Dec. 5.

Robert L. Groover, former assistant general manager of the Atlantic Coastline Railway Co., has accepted a position with Transportation Consultants, Inc., of Washington, D. C. On Dec. 2, he left the United States for Baghdad, Iraq, for the purpose of giving advisory service to the Iraqi State Railways. Mr. Groover retired from his position with Atlantic Coastline on Nov. 8, after "42 years of faithful and efficient service." Prior to his appointment as assistant general manager, he was chief engineer of Atlantic Coastline and its subsidiaries for 10 years in charge of design, construction, and maintenance.

MALLORY L. BATSON has moved from Shades Mountain, Birmingham, to Rt. 5, Clanton.

Berry Cruse is a resident of Mobile, having moved there from Birmingham.

Ben J. Coplan is industrial evaluation engineer with the General Services Administration in Washington, D.C.

D. D. Wendell, Birmingham, has been elected a vice-president of the Alabama Power Co. by the Company's board of directors. Since 1952 he has been manager of transmission and distribution for utility. He began his employment in 1927 as a junior engineer and later served as assistant district superintendent in Montgomery, district superintendent in Tuscaloosa, and as manager of the Company's Western Division. A friend of his attributed his success to the following formula: "Good school engineering, plus hard work, plus personal qualities that enable a man to succeed."

Edward B. Weedon has moved from Boston to Belmont, Mass.

Carey Speer is living in Valdosta, Ga. Jake L. Pate of Johnson-Pate Co. in Talledega has put the Alumni Association in touch with another alumnus, Robert L. Burns, '25, with whom we had lost contact.

Dan W. Hollis retired on Oct. 1 after 25 years service with the Post Office in Headland. Living on his farm three miles out of Headland, he reports that he now has nothing to do but work, which is nothing new to him. A recent letter which Mr. Hollis wrote to the Alumnews conveyed a note of sincere enthusiasm for being back at work with Mrs. Hollis around the "Old Homestead" and reminds us of the fact that for those who maintain a vital interest in work and the affairs about them retirement marks a beginning rather than the ending of a career. The Hollises have two children, Dan, Jr., '41, who is a partner in the Auburn Printing Co., and Ann (Mrs. Brooks Higgins), who lives in Montgomery. Dan, Jr., and his wife have a son and a daughter, and Mr. and Mrs. Higgins have two daughters.

1923

David B. Tidmore, a representative of Republic Steel Corporation for 33 years, now has his headquarters in Mobile. He will represent the Company in South Alabama, parts of East Mississippi, and Northwest Florida.

1924

Albert S. Golemon, Houston, Tex., has been nominated for the position of first vice-president of the American Institute of Architects. He has served as a member of the national board of the Institute for a number of years.

1925

Alwyn Y. McConnell has moved from West Palm Beach to Jacksonville, Fla. Josiah R. Wood is living in Miami, Fla., having moved there from Mobile.

Dr. F. S. Arant, head professor of zoology-entomology at API, has been elected chairman of the editorial board of the Journal of Economic Entomology, publication of the Entomological Society of America.

J. N. Esslinger, New Hope mathematics and science teacher, was recently featured in the Birmingham News for his devoted teaching service. He is now rounding out his 40th year in the profession, his 17th at New Hope. He is sponsor of the high school Beta Club and the school newspaper. According to reports, he has made his first year algebra a popular course—an almost incredible teaching achievement.

Col. M. D. Johnson, AUS, Ret., is a dollar-a-year servant of the City of Bessemer, having been appointed Bessemer director of Civil Defense on Nov. 1.

Clement Torbert, Sr., has been elected treasurer of the Opelika Chamber of Commerce.

C. W. (Red) Roberts, vice-president and Macon Division Manager of the Georgia Power Co., has been named president of the Macon (Ga.) Chamber of Commerce.

1928

Moreland Smith, of the Montgomery architectural firm of Sherlock, Smith & Adams, was one of the five members of the American Institute of Architects selected to choose the architect for and to supervise the construction of the new Kongresshalle in the Western sector of Berlin. The Congress Hall, just completed, reportedly "stole the show" at Berlin's recent International Building Exposition.

Dr. E. V. Smith, dean of the API School of Agriculture and director of the Alabama Agricultural Experiment Station, has been elected chairman of the legislative subcommittee of the Experiment Station committee on organization and policy by the American Association of Land-Grant Colleges and State Universities. Dr. Smith has also been elected president of the Association of Southern Agricultural Experiment Station Directors.

Harry Fulwiler, Jr., has moved from Hyattsville, Md., to Alexandria, Va.

Cindy Lester is living in Tallahassee, Fla., having moved there from Montgomery.

Wade W. Hester has moved from Cherokee to Guin.

Emil (Snitz) Snider retired from coaching at the conclusion of the past football season after 23 years as head mentor for the Bessemer Purple Tigers. The Tigers ended the season in fine style, beating their traditional rivals from Hueytown 13-0, for the coach who has led them to 139 victories against 53 losses and 7 ties. All Coach Snider's former captains back to 1933 were on hand for game ceremonies honoring him.

Dr. Millard Samford is a member of the board of directors of the Opelika Chamber of Commerce.

Arley F. Baas, formerly a resident of Plateau, is living in Mobile.

Fletcher Farrington, Dadeville, was recently honored by the Sylacauga Exchange Club for his outstanding work in the area as a county farm agent. Farrington is farm agent for Tallapoosa County.

As regular as the change of seasons, Kent Springfield of Gadsden sends in his dues to the Alumni Association. Like a Christmas greeting from an old friend his check came in again just before the Holidays to remind us of much Auburn has to be thankful for in the steady, reliable group that support her through the Alumni Association program.

W. W. Cotney, superintendent of the Upper Coastal Plains Substation, Winfield, recently presided over the dedication of a new auditorium just completed on the Substation.

Noble Crump is the new president of the Chamber of Commerce in Montgomery.

Roy W. Wages is living in Atlanta, Ga. Alfred Harrison of Opelika has been appointed chairman of the 1958 Heart Fund Drive in Lee County.

George Wesley (Ripper) Williams has been elected president of the Muscle Shoals Chamber of Commerce.

Lt. Col. Gerald J. Laubenthal is living in Birmingham.

Robert F. Perry has moved from Hartselle to Decatur.

Millard D. Moon, who is associated with the F. S. Royster Guano Co., has transferred from Montgomery to Bessemer.

The API chapter of Sigma Xi has paid further tribute to the late Don H. Copeland, API associate pathologist until the time of his death in June. Sigma Xi, of which he was a member, cited Copeland in a resolution adopted Nov. 19.

The resolution read in part: "We desire to express this tribute to the memory of Donovan H. Copeland as a man, a scientist, and a companion zealous in research and to pledge ourselves to a continuance of the spirit of service exemplified by his life." The resolution also mentioned the scientist's "outstanding contributions on the histopathology of experimental cancer."

Terry S. Mosley has moved from Atlanta to Birmingham.

Archie Hughes Adams is manager of the Universal Atlas Cement Company's Buffington Plant in Gary, Ind. A native of Leeds, he was plant engineer for Universal Atlas in Leeds until 1939; he became assistant manager of the Gary, Ind., plant and in 1954 he was promoted to his present position. Active in civic affairs, he is a director of the Gary Chamber of Commerce and a member of Rotary, the Gary University Club, the Indiana Manufacturing Association, the Gary Country Club, the Indiana Society of Chicago, Ill., and the East Chicago Chamber of Commerce. From 1952 until 1946 he served with the U.S. Navy rising to lieutenant commander in the USNR. He is married to the former Betty Jakubik and they have a nine-month-old daughter, Karen Elise.

THE LATEST STYLE IN TAGS—

MARTIN L. BECK, JR., '49, shows how to mount the "Auburn Number One in the Nation Tag" which he and Charles T. Black, Jr., '55, designed and produced. Martin conceived the idea and got with Charles to work out the design and form the B & B Tag Co., which had the tags on the market three days after the announcement of Auburn's national championship. The tag is made of rust-proof steel with orange background, blue letters and figures, and white trim.

One of the tags may now be found on at least one car in every state in the United States and in many foreign countries, including Korea, Turkey, and Panama. An Auburn service station attendant left the Plains with the avowed intention of putting one on the car of Ohio State Coach Woody Hayes' automobile. Governor James E. Folsom stopped over in Auburn to pick up twenty of them.

Beck and Black are now looking for Auburnites who want to serve as dealers to simplify the matter of distribution to meet continuing demands. People desiring to serve as distributors or to purchase tags may write to the B & B Tag Company, P.O. Box 752, Auburn, Ala. Individual tags sell at $1.25 in Auburn or $1.50 when wrapped and mailed.

This photograph of the Class of 1894 turned up in some material being collected for a coming feature in the ALUMNEWS. For some reason, we found pleasure in looking at it here at the beginning of a New Year. It reminded us of several things: Auburn's tremendous growth; how much we owe to those early graduates who built Auburn's reputation; how much things have changed and how much they are still the same, for if one casts away the superficialities of matters of style and hairdo this might well be a page from the 1957 Glomerata. There is a continuity in the type of spirit of Auburn students. Above all there is continuity in the variety, and we hope in their characteristic individualism. One of the problems facing Auburn now is maintenance of a faculty large enough and well-trained enough to offer the kind of instruction that results in mature individualism rather than assembly-line produced graduates. Somehow, we feel that the Class of '94 would be for solving that problem above all others.

WE ARE LATE, but she is still charming. Evelyn Ray, Miss Homecoming 1957, had to be left out of our post-Homecoming issue, but we still had the above photo of her, with the coveted trophy, ready to print, and the beginning of the New Year seems the appropriate time to rectify our omission. She is a sophomore from Cottonwood. Her escort (shown above with her) was Ken Mattingly. The trophy and bouquet were presented to her in half-time ceremonies by Blue Key President Gene Burr.

About 'Alumnalities' And The Time-Lag

Perhaps the Alumnews is due its readers a note of explanation about an unavoidable time lag in the publication of "Alumnality" items. After a certain point in gathering raw material and checking it, preparation and publication of the Alumnews boils down to a one-man job — except for actual printing, mailing and helpful suggestions from Executive Secretary Joe Sarver.

Basically, the size of a given issue is determined by the number and length of personal items about alumni. To prevent a snarled operation, "Alumnalities" columns must be closed approximately two weeks ahead of publication, which normally occurs about the fifteenth of each month. Add to this two weeks the time for material to arrive in the Alumni offices through campus mail, which may add an extra day or so to arrival time, plus time for checking and recording in the front office historical files, plus the time for mailing and distribution after the paper is printed and you have a rather complete account of the time lag.

We are constantly seeking methods to reduce the amount of time involved, but finding better methods to secure more complete and more accurate coverage of alumni activities seems to be a more important consideration at the moment.

Smiths Outnumber Jones At Auburn

By L. B. Williams
(API News Bureau)

It is not the Joneses they try to keep up with at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute! It's the Smiths who hold sway—numerically speaking.

There are 105 Smiths on the Auburn campus. Nine of these are faculty and staff; the remaining 96 are students.

The Joneses, however, are next. They number an even 100. Of these, 18 are college employees, and 82 are students.

Williams, another much heard name, claims 77 persons, and 66 of these are students. The Johnsons number 67, the Davises 64, the Browns 57 (if one Browne is counted), and the Thompsons are 24 strong (if one Thomas is included).

Persons having names beginning with Mc are more numerous than any. They number 276 among students and college employees. They begin in alphabetical order with McAbee, include names like McNorton, McIntosh, McLead, and end with McWilliams. According to API's new telephone directory, there are six of the Scottish Macs on campus. They begin with Macbean and end with Macpherson. Included in this list is that famous old Shakespearean name—Macbeth—but he's James Alex and hails from Albany, Ga.
